Chapter 458: Embracing Life After Death

A New Divine Message

The vast expanse of the Godverse shimmered with ethereal light as Sung Jin-Woo stood alongside Ashborn and Sung Su-Ho. The Divine Triad, embodying authority over the realms, convened to deliver a message that would shape mortal existence across the multiverse. Surrounding them were the Nine Divine Dragons, their wings gleaming with celestial power.

The Triad had decreed that life was no longer solely about mortal achievements but about the path each being carved for themselves toward the afterlife.

"Let them seek Elysium," Sung Jin-Woo declared, his golden eyes glowing with divine radiance. "A paradise of eternal joy and peace for those who walk the righteous path."

Ashborn added, his voice solemn yet hopeful, "A place where goodness shall be rewarded with a life beyond imagination."

Sung Su-Ho, ever fierce, warned, "But those who choose evil and corruption—let them know the cold embrace of the Netherworld, where darkness reigns and justice is served."

Elysium: A Reward for the Righteous

The Divine Triad painted a vision of Elysium to inspire mortals:

A paradise filled with golden fields, crystal rivers, and eternal homes of radiant beauty.

An eternal life where desires were fulfilled, and suffering ceased.

Families and friends reunited, living in peace and harmony under the gentle light of the Triad's blessings.

"Good deeds shall lead you to Elysium," proclaimed Sung Ye-Jun, the eldest of the Nine Divine Dragons. "There, joy knows no bounds, and peace lasts forever."

Sung Ye-Rin, her silver wings shimmering, added, "Even the least place in Elysium is greater than any mundane realm."

Netherworld: A Warning for the Wicked

The Netherworld, however, stood as a grim contrast to Elysium:

A dark, cold, and desolate realm, where punishment awaited those who had embraced evil in life.

Endless shadows and torment administered by dark angels led by Amenadiel.

A place where souls reflected on their sins until redemption became possible.

"Those who tread the path of malice and harm," warned Amenadiel himself, descending with dark angelic majesty, "shall find themselves in the eternal cold of the Netherworld."

Guidance for the Living

The Divine Triad commanded their Archangels, Dark Archangels, and the Nine Divine Dragons to spread this divine message across the realms:

Seek Goodness: Embrace kindness, compassion, and righteousness in daily life.

Reject Evil: Avoid malice, cruelty, and sin, knowing the consequences were eternal.

Embrace Mortality: Accept death as a transition, not an end.

Gabriel, the Archangel of Guidance, spoke to saints in mortal realms: "Fear not the end of your life. Walk the righteous path, and Elysium shall welcome you with open arms."

The Shift in Mortal Hearts

As this divine message spread, mortal realms began to change.

Worshippers and followers across countless worlds sought after Elysium, driven by the promise of an eternal paradise.

Saints and priests encouraged communities to pursue lives of virtue and service.

Sinners and wrongdoers trembled at the threat of the Netherworld, with many seeking redemption to escape its cold grasp.

In temples and sanctuaries, statues of the Divine Triad and the Nine Divine Dragons became symbols of guidance and hope.

A Divine Declaration

Standing atop a golden platform in the Godverse, Sung Jin-Woo spoke once more:

"The afterlife is yours to shape. Choose goodness, and you shall find eternal joy. Choose evil, and you shall face justice. The path is yours to walk."

Ashborn lifted his celestial scepter. "The universe thrives on balance. Let your choices tip it toward harmony."

Sung Su-Ho laughed, his fierce grin unwavering. "Live well, mortals, and maybe you'll even get a good seat in Elysium!"

Thus, the Divine Triad and the Nine Divine Dragons set forth their eternal guidance, shaping not just mortal lives but the destiny of souls across the infinite multiverse.
